Judgement and approach

The course is sustainability-related, which means that at least one of the learning outcomes clearly shows that the course content meets at least one of the University of Gothenburg's confirmed sustainability criteria.

Form of teaching

The learning is achieved through active participation during the practical internship. Under remote supervision from faculty at the Department of Conservation it is expected that the student follow and participate in the activities carried out in the workplace. Students should critically reflect on their observations. Regular seminars during the internship period will be given remotely. During the seminar the student should present a draft of an article that could be submitted for publication to be submitted for the final examination.

Language of instruction: English and Swedish

The language of the internship placements depends on the location of the internship. The language of all seminars and examinations is English.

Assessment

The student is examined through

Sample Module 1: Praktik / Internship (6 credits, UG)

Sample module 2: Praktikrapport / Internship report (1.5 credits, UG)

If a student, who has failed the same examined component twice, wishes to change examiner before the next examination, a written application shall be sent to the department responsible for the course and shall be granted unless there are special reasons to the contrary (Chapter 6, Section 22 of Higher Education Ordinance).

In cases where a course has been discontinued or has undergone major changes, the student shall normally be guaranteed at least three examination occasions (including the ordinary examination) during a period of at least one year from the last time the course was given.

Grades

The grading scale comprises: Pass (G) and Fail (U).

Course evaluation

The results of and possible changes to the course will be shared with students who participated in the evaluation and students who are starting the course.
