Specialization

A1F, Second cycle, has second-cycle course/s as entry requirements

Entry requirements

For admission to the course, at least 15 higher education credits at the advanced level in the subject of psychology are required. In addition, at least 15 credits in research methodology at the advanced level from one of the following courses are required: PX2310 Psychology: Statistical analysis and method, 15 credits, or PX2311 Psychology: Qualitative research methods, 15 credits or the equivalent courses.

Furthermore, applicants need Swedish B/Swedish 3 and English B/English 6.

Learning outcomes

On successful completion of the course the student will be able to:

Competence and skills

- apply acquired quantitative and/or qualitative method knowledge to a scientific problem

- independently plan, carry out, analyse and report a scientific study that meets requirements for publication in scientific journals
- oppose in a systematic and educational way

Judgement and approach

- argue for and defend own scientific paper, and communicate the results to a broader public
- adhere to ethical aspects and principles for research

Course content

The aim of the course is to provide a training in independent planning, implementing and reporting a study in the form of a thesis. A research topic is chosen in consultation with supervisor, who is a member in one of the department's research groups. The thesis should meet basic requirements for publishing in international scientific journals.

Teaching is given in the form of seminars and supervision. The course ends with a compulsory seminar, where the thesis is discussed.

Form of teaching

Teaching consists of seminars and supervision.

Language of instruction: Swedish

The thesis should be written in Swedish or English.

Assessment

The assessment is based on the thesis and the underlying empirical work that is brought up to discussion during a thesis seminar. Each student must individually oppose a thesis and submit a written opposition essay. The grade is based primarily on the thesis, but also on the supervisor's assessment of the student's degree of independence, the written opposition essay, and the defense of the student's own thesis. The final assessment seminar is compulsory. The examination takes place individually or in groups.

Compensation for absence is made according to the course coordinator's instructions.

If a student who has failed the same examined component twice and wants to change examiner before the next examination, they should submit a written request to the department responsible for the course. The request shall be granted unless there are special reasons to the contrary (Chapter 6, Section 22 of Higher Education Ordinance).

If a student has received a recommendation from the University of Gothenburg for special educational support, the examiner may, given it is compatible with the course objectives and unreasonable resources are required, decide to give the student an adapted examination or alternative examination form.

In the event where a course has been discontinued or has undergone major changes, the student shall normally be guaranteed at least three examinations (including the ordinary examination) during a period of at least one year up to two years after the course has been discontinued/changed. The same applies for internships and on-the-job trainings, but with a restriction to only one additional examination session.

Grades

The grading scale comprises: Pass with Distinction (VG), Pass (G) and Fail (U).

To obtain the grade Pass, students must:

- receive a pass on opposition of another student's thesis and to defend their own thesis
- receive a pass on their own thesis

To receive the grade Pass with Distinction, students must:

- receive a pass with distinction on opposition of another student's thesis and to defend their own thesis successfully
- receive the grade Pass with Distinction on their own thesis.

More detailed criterion for Fail, Pass and Pass with Distinction are available in the Course Guide.

Course evaluation

The course coordinator is responsible for ensuring that students are given the opportunity to provide an anonymous, written course feedback at the end of the course. On completion of the course, the course coordinator writes a course report, which includes a summary of students' feedback about the course. The course report is discussed in a relevant course evaluation group and is communicated both to the students who completed the course evaluation as well as to the students who are starting the course. The reports are available to students.

Additional information

The literature is chosen individually in connection with the selected thesis topic.

If the course requires access to digital resources like a computer, internet or other tools, the student is responsible for making sure they have access to such resources.
