Lärandemål

Efter godkänd kurs ska studenten kunna:

Kunskap och förståelse

- Identify and distinguish formal and informal actors (i.e. the state, private sector corporations, migration brokers, non-governmental organisations) processes that influence the realization of human rights in a globalizing world;
- review key authors and ideas in the field of legal anthropology and the subject areas of corporate social responsibility, mobility and human rights, insurgency, and human rights.

Färdigheter och förmåga

- investigate and analyse complex phenomena, issues and situations through theoretical and conceptual approaches;
- independently collect, summarize and critically review academic texts;
- critically assess and give constructive feedback on peer papers;
- apply business and human rights standards to specific cases/examples;
- assess the impact on human rights of economic policies and business practices;

Värderingsförmåga och förhållningssätt

- Critically reflect upon the role and responsibilities of states and the emerging accountability of non-state actors in relation to human rights;
- analyze human rights norms and their manifestations in 'everyday' life;
- reflect on the manifestation of human rights norms in contested environments, such as in the context of 'irregular' transnational migration and civil conflict.

Innehåll

This course studies contentious human rights issues that emerge on the intersection of state authority, market dynamics and political contestation. The module encourages critical thinking about challenges spurred by this intersection and ways in which such challenges can be met by different actors, so as to improve the realization of human rights in a globalizing world. Rather than the human rights framework as a given, we explore the complex ways in which this framework interacts with the lived realities of supposed right-holders.

In this course, we deliberately orient ourselves at apparently marginal spaces: situations where the foundations and ramifications of legal norms are not so straightforward and raise fundamental questions about the conceptual underpinnings of human rights. We draw on literature in legal ethnography to grapple with the convoluted legal landscapes that we will encounter in these margins.

The course is organized in three thematic areas: human rights and the market (including the application of business and human rights standards); human rights and mobility (including the many formal and informal actors that shape the contested arena of transnational migration) and human rights and insurgency (including the complications that arise when the primary duty-bearer, the state, is challenged or incapacitated). Throughout these three blocks, we will attend to dimensions of gender, race, and indigeneity.

Former för undervisning

Undervisningsspråk: engelska

Former för bedömning

The course examinations are carried out through five assignments, as follows:

Assignment 1 is a group exercise in the form of a literature review of pre-selected academic papers (2 credits)

Assignment 2 is an individually written literature review of self-chosen academic papers (2 credits)

Assignment 3 is a group peer review exercise of papers written in the course (1 credit)

Assignment 4 is an individually written revised and expanded paper, based on feedback received by peers and on one's reflections and further research (literature review)(5 credits).

Assignment 5 is a case study on a selected current issue (5 credits).

The examination assignments may include written and oral peer review feedback, and seminars for discussion and presentation. In the case of missed or failed seminar participation, supplementary assignment is provided.

A student who has taken two exams in a course or part of a course without obtaining a pass grade is entitled to the nomination of another examiner. The student needs to contact the department for a new examiner, preferably in writing, and this should be approved by the department unless there are special reasons to the contrary (Chapter 6 Section 22 of the Higher Education Ordinance).

If a student has received a recommendation from the University of Gothenburg for special educational support, where it is compatible with the learning outcomes of the course and provided that no unreasonable resources are required, the examiner may decide to allow the student to sit an adjusted exam or alternative form of assessment.

In the event that a course has ceased or undergone major changes, students are to be guaranteed at least three examination sessions (including the ordinary examination session) over a period of at least one year, but no more than two years, after the course has ceased/been changed. The same applies to placements and professional placements (VFU), although this is restricted to just one additional examination session.
